Alumni Spotlight

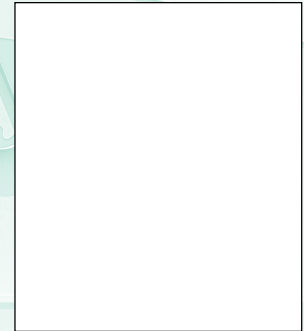

Recipe for Success Includes Hard Work, Sacrifice, Education, Technology

It has all the elements of an American success story: local boy grows up working in hometown family business, goes to hometown college, graduates, and returns to family business. That, in summary, is the story of Mark Chanatry '87.

Starting at age 10, Chanatry bagged groceries, cashed out orders, and dished out potato salad at the store deli, working his way up the ranks at Chanatry's Market, an institution in Utica since 1912. Now a vice president of the store on French Road, Chanatry's life-long experience is a real plus.

"There's nothing in this store that I would ask an employee to do that I have not done, or would not do."

While many of the skills he uses every day he learned from personal experience in the store, others were obtained at SUNY Utica/Rome. Graduating in 1987 with a degree in Business and Professional Studies from the School of Management, Chanatry attributes a great deal of his personal success to his professor at the time, Al Mario. "Mr. Mario encouraged me to seize the moment and remain committed to the success of the family store," Chanatry says. In fact, Mario shopped at the store regularly and "provided helpful business advice, including suggestions on things such as aisle displays." Beyond his professor's personal influence, Chanatry found his business courses beneficial, especially advertising. One thing he believes is crucial to success is motivating employees, and rewarding hard work. "If it's not a nice place to work, it's not a nice place to shop."

Putting what he learned at SUNY Utica/Rome to work has been part of Chanatry's Market's recipe for success. Following a multi-million dollar renovation in 1999, the store and all its departments were enlarged, the bakery was moved to an addition, more refrigeration space and new display fixtures were added, and parking was expanded. Now employing more than 200 people, Chanatry's is a full-service grocery store, with a deli, bakery, meat counter, and produce department. The store was voted #1 for the second year in a row in the Utica Observer-Dispatch "Best of the Best" contest. And Chanatry's is no stranger to technological innovation; the store launched a Web site two years ago (www.chanatry's.com) that provides on-line grocery shopping, sales fliers, coupons, recipes, meal plans, and contests.

A family man himself – Mark, his wife, Kristin, and their children, Ashley, 7, and Mark, 5, live in New Hartford – Chanatry says carrying on the family business isn't always easy. "You have to be committed to the success of a family business. Sacrifice is something that anyone working in or planning on starting a business should be prepared for." With a proud 89-year history behind it (Chanatry's was one of the first "supermarkets" in the country), and a commitment to excellence coupled with community support, this alum's family business has a bright future indeed.

My Contribution

Each year we ask you to support SUNY Institute of Technology at Utica/Rome with a gift to the Annual Fund, and each year your enthusiastic support to our appeal has been gratifying. When our students return to campus this fall to begin the 2001-2002 academic year, your financial support will be evident in increased student scholarships, improved academic computing resources, cultural and performing arts programs, and much more. Your continued support is critical to the college's future.

Like other colleges and universities, SUNY Utica/Rome faces the demands of increasing and diversifying its student population, attracting and maintaining a talented and creative faculty, advancing technologically, improving our physical plant, enhancing our curriculum, and serving our community. We have responded to these and other challenges in a variety of ways.

SUNY Utica/Rome looks forward to a future of opportunities and challenges. We need your support to provide students with the tools to establish successful careers and meet the demands of a global society and the rapid changes of technology.

Our Annual Fund goal this year is $200,000. Your contribution not only funds emergency student loans and scholarships, but also helps purchase classroom and laboratory equipment that is essential in preparing our students to step into the professional world well prepared and ready to contribute in their career fields.

Those funds also insure that our library will provide students with the ability to learn by using modern methods to conduct research that will enrich their studies and our lives.

Your gift – whether $25, $50, $100, $250 or any other amount – is deeply appreciated and is significant, no matter its size. Most important is that you invest something. In fact, one frequent question SUNY Utica/Rome must answer on grant applications is, "What is the percentage of participation to the Annual Fund?" Corporations and foundations view this as a measure of the strength of an institution and rank us against other colleges. Your gift increases our chances to raise funds from corporations and foundations. Please help us to improve our participation.

Keep in mind, if your employer is one of the thousands of companies that match their employees' gifts to higher education, then you can double, triple, even quadruple the benefit your gift can have. Contact your human resources or personnel representative for your company's matching gift form and send it in with your contribution.

We are preparing to offer you the convenience of making your gift or paying your pledge on-line, through a secure Web site. Be on the lookout for this new feature at www.sunyit.edu/alumni.

*Gratefully yours,
Francine A. Cronin

While some alumni travel hundreds, even thousands of miles for their first job, one May graduate didn't go far to start her career. Dawna Smith is the new annual fund officer in the SUNY Utica/Rome Office of College Relations and Development. After working as an intern in the office, and serving as a Phonathon caller, Dawna brings a wealth of "inside experiences" to her new job.

A native of Walton, N.Y., and a graduate of Herkimer County Community College, Smith received a bachelor's degree in Professional and Technical Communication. She was the recipient of the Technical Communication Program Institute Service award.

"SUNY Utica/Rome has become a big part of my life," Smith says, "I look forward to helping students and alums enjoy SUNY Utica/Rome like I have."

During her internship in the College Relations and Development office, Smith developed and implemented programs such as Phonathon Partners and SUNY Utica/Rome Sweethearts. She also designed an on-line application for the Phonathon associate position. Before accepting the annual fund officer position, she worked as a CBT designer developing computer-based safety training programs for Kraft Foods, Inc.

In her new role on campus, she'll work to continue the development of SUNY Utica/Rome's annual fund program. "It's an exciting opportunity for me, and a way for me to use many of the skills I learned in the Pro Tech Comm program."

Since she enjoys meeting new people, Smith looks forward to Fall Fest and other upcoming events so she can connect with more members of the SUNY Utica/Rome family. "That's what it's all about," she says. "Whether you're an alum, student, employee, or friend of the college you are what makes SUNY Utica/Rome special."

Getting Good Advice

Some well-known faces from the region's business community have been seen on campus over the last few months. The School of Management has established an advisory board, to serve as a stakeholder in the School's growth and development.

"We're looking forward to the possibility of accepting freshmen, beginning fall of 2003," said Dr. Sanjay Varshney, dean of the School of Management. "We have also received approval for our intent to offer the MBA program. Further, the School has entered the process of getting accredited by AACSB, the premier accrediting agency for programs in business. Currently, only about 15 percent of all business schools are accredited by AACSB in the United States."

Dr. Varshney said a community advisory board is an important part of the accreditation effort. "We're delighted to have the following join our new board: Mr. Ray Halbritter, CEO of the Oneida Indian Nation; Donna McManmon, vice president of education and training at BlueCross-BlueShield of Central New York; Laura Marcantonio, president, director and COO of Herkimer County Trust; and Mary Giardino, partner and manager at Dermody, Burke and Brown, CPA, P.C. The willingness of these very influential members of our business community to serve as our board members is critical to our success."

Area Businesses Back Academic Awards

The annual Academic Awards Banquet honored the achievements of many students from SUNY Utica/Rome's four Schools: Arts & Science, Information Systems and Engineering Technology, Management, and Nursing.

The School of Management's awards are made possible by the support of many businesses and organizations. In addition to three honors named for individuals – the Robert D. Leidig Memorial Prize, the Al Mario Business Strategy Prize, and the Dean's Award – many other awards were established with the backing of the following:

- Small Business Development Center
- PAR Technology Corporation
- SoftNoze USA
- American Express Financial Advisors
- New York Health Information Management Association
- Statewide Independent PPO
- Slocum Dickson
- The Association of University Programs in Health
- Administration Bugbee-Falk Book Award
- Oneida County Comptroller's Office
- Mohawk Valley Society for Human Resource Management

The School of Management thanks all the corporate and business sponsors for their support and for their investment in education.

Commencement weekend included the annual Academic Awards Banquet. The fifth annual event May 4 paid tribute to dozens of students for their academic achievements. The event recognizes individual and group achievements in virtually all the disciplines. This year the event, held in the Campus Center gymnasium the evening before commencement, attracted hundreds of students, parents and family members, faculty and staff.

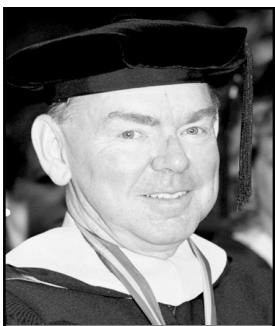

Morey, Hutchinson Receive Chancellor's Awards

SUNY Institute of Technology at Utica/Rome honored two of its own at May Commencement for their dedication to students. Chancellor's Awards were presented to James H. Morey, associate professor in health services management, for Excellence in Teaching; and Edward A. Hutchinson, director of financial aid, for Excellence in Professional Service.

Morey has helped lead the way in moving from traditional classroom instruction to the World Wide Web; he was a pioneer on the Utica/Rome campus in offering courses through the SUNY Learning Network. For example, during the past two years he has put three of his courses on the Web through SLN.

His colleague in the School of Management's HSM department, Dr. Gary Scherzer, says Morey is "a marvelous teacher, highly regarded – loved by his students. He has maintained on-going contact with many of his former students for years. That fact alone has been very beneficial to our program, as some of those former students are now in key positions and they hire our more recent graduates."

Continuing his dedication to students outside the classroom, Morey has been instrumental in securing internships for students at 12 sites across the state, from E.J. Noble Hospital in Gouverneur, to Capital Health Plan in Albany. Also outside the classroom, Morey has demonstrated his commitment to students by raising more than $8,500 for scholarships.

While performing his primary duties in a consistently excellent fashion, Morey has served the campus on numerous committees, and in addition to numerous professional memberships, has made a commitment to community service, serving on the boards of area nursing homes, and community health centers.

Hutchinson, SUNY Utica/Rome's financial aid director for the past nine years, has helped the Financial Aid Office, and the institution, earn statewide recognition through consistently high rankings on the SUNY Student Opinion Survey. He regularly conducts workshops and financial aid seminars throughout the region, and for the past several years, Hutchinson and his staff have taken part in a national effort to better inform parents and students about financial aid issues, assisting in the staffing of the "USA Today Financial Aid Hotline," based in Washington, D.C.

Hutchinson has served the campus on numerous committees, and has been active statewide in the field of financial aid, through his leadership in the New York State Financial Aid Administrators Association, and the SUNY Financial Aid Professionals Association. Off-campus, he has been active in the wider community, serving on the City of Sherrill Zoning Board, the Sherrill-Kenwood Public Library Board of Trustees, and the Christ Church Board of Trustees.

Marybeth Lyons, director of admissions, says Hutchinson is a "knowledgeable, hard-working, dedicated professional. He has always been available to assist with initiatives for new and returning students and is continually involved with open houses, credit evaluation days, graduate information sessions – he extends financial aid office hours during busy times to accommodate our students. His commitment to the institution is instrumental in the recruitment and retention of our diverse student body."

Alumni Reflections...

The class of 2001 has walked across the stage to become the newest members of the SUNY Utica/Rome family, which now numbers nearly 18,000. Our alumni cover the country, working in a wide variety of professions. While we all have fond memories of our time at Upper Division College, SUNY College of Technology, and SUNY Institute of Technology – whether our time was spent in the mills or on the Marcy campus – we have a common bond: we're all SUNY Utica/Rome alumni.

Being an alum means different things to different people, and we may choose to give back to our alma mater in a variety of ways. Some may tell everyone about the quality education they received. Others may help provide internships to current students, or mentor alumni. Many alumni give to the Annual Fund, which provides scholarships to deserving students. Still others may volunteer at college events, on- or off-campus.

If you're considering giving some time back, now is a perfect time to make that call. Perhaps you'd like to help out at an alumni event, work in the Alumni Relations Office, or talk to a current student about your career field. Please call me at (315) 792-7110 to re-connect with your alma mater.

Mark your calendar for Fall Fest 2001, Sept. 28-30. We hope to see you there!

CulturedMed: SUNY's Rx for Better Refugee Care

by Ellen Portnoy

State University of New York
Institute of Technology

Academics | Administration | Athletics

After prepping the patient for an appendectomy, staffers wheeled the elderly Chinese man to surgery. Seeing the number four on the operating room door, the man grew agitated and refused to enter. The problem? In Chinese, the word four means death.

To eliminate cross-cultural confusion and mental anguish, the library at SUNY Institute of Technology at Utica/Rome offers CulturedMed, a new resource center—print materials, electronic data bases and a Web site, www.sunyit.edu/library/html/culturedmed, containing refugee-specific healthcare information.

CulturedMed's developer is Jacquelyn Coughlan, SUNY's associate librarian and head of public services since 1985. Coughlan is no novice in refugee matters. A former board member of the Multicultural Association of Medical Interpreters of Central New York, Coughlan has also taught the crosscultural segment of a 72-hour course for healthcare providers. Since SUNY nursing students must develop a healthcare plan for an ethnic or immigrant group, Coughlan pondered how she could assist them.

In 1997, she started reading, searching for articles on specific immigrant group health beliefs and practices. In May 1998, she received a $2,000 Professional Development and Quality of Working Life grant from University Professions for resource development. For the next six weeks, Coughlan read articles, established a bibliography, created the Web site and its links and packed a five-drawer library file cabinet with information. "I came in early and worked late," she recalls.

After brainstorming possibilities, Coughlan named the Web site CulturedMed. "People should be cultured enough not to be provincial, especially when it involves health care. A cultured person should know about the wider world," she explains.

Coughlan knows something about that wider world herself. Born in Kansas City, Missouri, she grew up all over the country and the world; she graduated from high school in Frankfurt, Germany. Her college years began at Central Missouri State, continued at Rider College in New Jersey and finished with a bachelor's degree in 1978 from Empire State College.

Coughlan also holds two master's degrees: one in library science from SUNY Albany, another in management science from SUNY Binghamton.

Although other Web sites offer multicultural health information, CulturedMed is different. "It's tailored to the area," Coughlan says. Since Utica is home to many Russians, Vietnamese and Bosnians, Coughlan started with bibliographies about these refugee groups, listing hundreds of relevant journals and books — all of which she's read. The Web site contains 109 references on Russians; 384 on Asians and 118 on Bosnians. To date, she's created 11 bibliographies — arranged by group or topic — on refugee and immigrant health; she's working on 38 more immigrant group bibliographies, each with information about food and nutrition, death and dying, domestic violence, plus culturally-specific medical beliefs and practices. "I try to make it something that has a practical application," she explains. The site also offers links to refugee policies, resettlement agencies and health information — including patient brochures — in different languages.

Who uses the Web site? Doctors, nurses, healthcare providers and service agencies like Planned Parenthood, Hospice and the Multicultural Association of Medical Interpreters. A dental bibliography is in the works. And Coughlan teaches nursing students how to use CulturedMed. The resources at SUNY's Kunsela Hall library are also open to the general public. Both Coughlan and Daniel Schabert, director of libraries and learning resources, are exploring additional grant opportunities. "I'd like to see it expanded and publicized more," Schabert says.

Individuals with varied interests have also logged on to CulturedMed's Web site. Coughlan opens a thick folder containing e-mails from around the world. A Pennsylvania Ph.D. candidate seeks information on menopause in Russian women. A Georgia writer seeks guidance on marketing her book, "Making It in America." A California legal aid clinic wants information on domestic abuse among immigrants. A New York business owner asks which refugee groups contain jewelry craftspeople. Refugees themselves send e-mails, seeking information on continuing interrupted educations – and on leaving their homelands.

Although these requests were unanticipated, Coughlan responds to all e-mails, referring individuals to other resources or appropriate agencies. Pleas from refugees are especially difficult to read. "I can't imagine being put in that situation. Your society, your country, your possessions, your profession, your relationships are gone," Coughlan says.

With only a part-time work-study student performing data entry, Coughlan remains CulturedMed's sole researcher, reader, evaluator and referring agent. Still, she insists, researching and reading are fun. Her only challenges: finding time to add Web site material in the proper format. And finding a Serbo-Croatian-English medical dictionary for the medical dictionary link she's adding. "I'm still working on that one," Coughlan says.

Library Construction "On Schedule"

On college campuses across the country, the library is the center of learning – a focal point for study and research. At SUNY Institute of Technology, students, faculty, and staff are watching with interest as the college's first new building of the 21st century takes shape.

Construction of a new 68,000 sq. ft. library building began in March 2001, and thanks to a Web cam, which can be accessed from the SUNY Utica/Rome homepage, www.sunyit.edu, anyone with a computer and Internet access can take a look at the progress construction crews are making. The Web cam site offers live, "real time" video images, plus archival photos of the site over the previous 12 hours, thanks to a camera mounted on the roof of Kunsela Hall.

"Construction is proceeding on schedule," says Bruce Reichel, SUNY Utica/Rome assistant vice president for facilities. The contractor for the $14 million dollar project is Murnane Construction, a Utica company. The architect for the project is The Thomas Group, of Ithaca. The new library will not be just a new, state-of-the-art building; it will also "provide the campus with a significant and new focal point at the campus entrance," says Roger Pierce of The Thomas Group.

When the project is ready for occupancy in fall 2002, it will include group and individual study rooms and an advanced computerized library instruction room. "There will be a blend of the traditional library and the virtual library," says Daniel Schabert, director of libraries and learning resources. "It will be flexible enough to change with advances in technology and at the same time offer traditional library services."

And although Schabert and his staff (and the entire college community) are looking forward to the finished project, a lot of work remains – both for the construction crew and the library staff. Schabert is working steadily on the many details that will need attention over the next year, from selecting library furniture to planning the move of hundreds of thousands of books and other items in the current collection to their new home.

The new building will provide the library collection and staff room to grow, but what about the current library wing of Kunsela Hall? "We're in the middle of a campus master plan update that will, among other things, determine the best reconfiguration of the current library wing," says Reichel.

Career Fair 2001 "Come Blow Your Horn"

We hope you'll join us on Thursday, October 11, 10 a.m. - 2 p.m., for the annual SUNY Institute of Technology at Utica/Rome Career Fair. This year we expect more than 100 employers to visit with current students and alumni in an effort to recruit for full-time, part-time, and internship opportunities. These local, regional, and national employers will represent information technology, financial services, health care, human services, and many other fields.

In anticipation of Career Fair 2001, Career Services is sponsoring a number of workshops that will be useful to new and experienced alumni seeking to start and/or enhance their careers. These workshops are informative, interactive, and hands-on:

"Resume Writing for Experienced Professionals"

Tuesday, September 11, 4:30-6 p.m., Career Services Presentation Room, Donovan Hall.

"How to Make the Most of Career Fair"

Tuesday, September 25, 6-7 p.m., Career Services Presentation Room, Donovan Hall.

Please pre-register by visiting the Career Services Web site www.sunyit.edu/saf/career_services, or by calling (315) 792-7165.

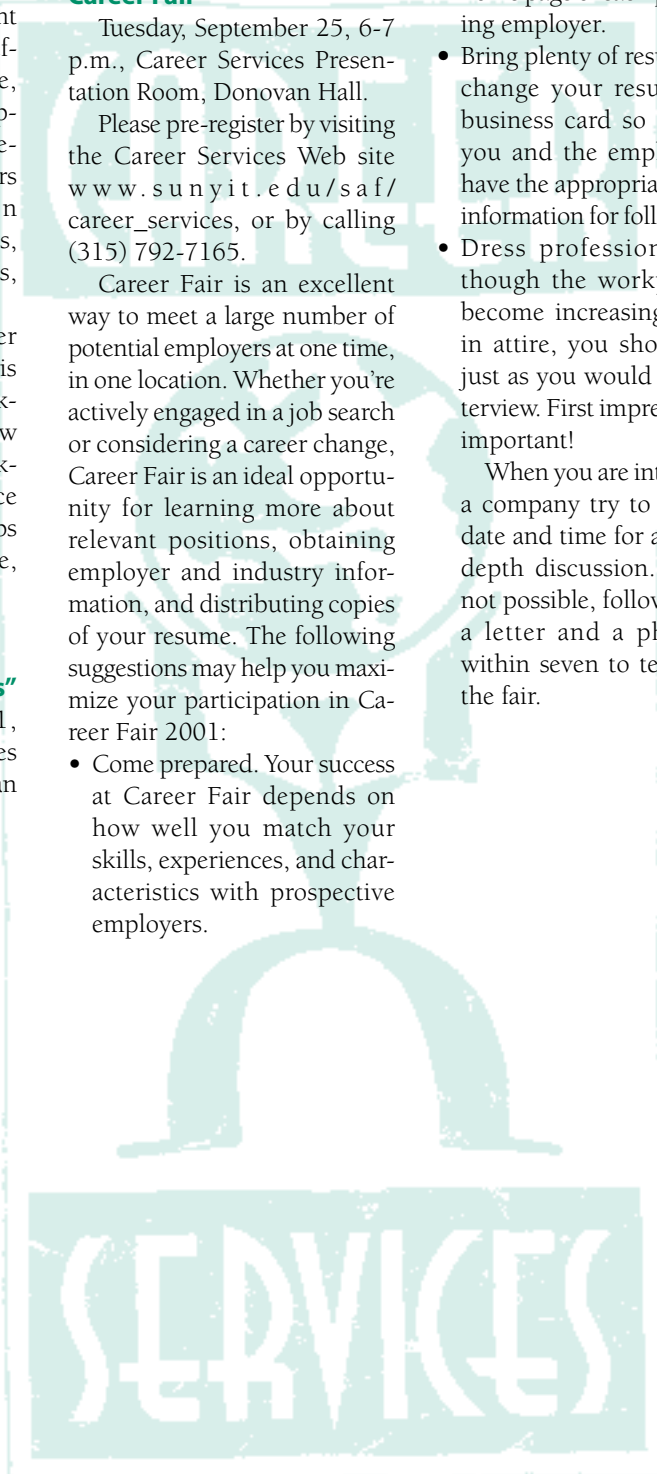

Career Fair is an excellent way to meet a large number of potential employers at one time, in one location. Whether you're actively engaged in a job search or considering a career change, Career Fair is an ideal opportunity for learning more about relevant positions, obtaining employer and industry information, and distributing copies of your resume. The following suggestions may help you maximize your participation in Career Fair 2001:

- Come prepared. Your success at Career Fair depends on how well you match your skills, experiences, and characteristics with prospective employers.

- Conduct preliminary research on employers by visiting the Career Services Web site. A link has been created to the home page of each participating employer.

- Bring plenty of resumes. Exchange your resume for a business card so that both you and the employer will have the appropriate contact information for following up.
- Dress professionally. Although the workplace has become increasingly casual in attire, you should dress just as you would for an interview. First impressions are important!

When you are interested in a company try to arrange a date and time for a more in-depth discussion. If this is not possible, follow-up with a letter and a phone call within seven to ten days of the fair.

RAs Reunite for Anniversary Celebration

SUNY Utica/Rome's Residential Life Program celebrates its 10th anniversary this fall, with a reunion of former staff members during Fall Fest 2001.

In the fall of 1991, the first residence hall on campus, Adirondack Hall, opened and began offering students a unique residential program. With continuing growth in the number of residential students, the college opened Mohawk Hall in 1996. More than 500 students live in Adirondack and Mohawk Halls each year, and the residence halls have consis-

Newest Varsity Sport: Women's Cross Country

SUNY Utica/Rome is reviving women's cross country as a varsity sport beginning in the fall of 2001. Cross country returns as the fifth women's varsity sport at the Institute of Technology, joining soccer, volleyball, basketball, and softball. The addition of women's cross country brings the total number of intercollegiate sports offered by the Institute of Technology to ten. In addition to the five women's sports the college also offers men's soccer, basketball, baseball, lacrosse, and golf. The Athletics Department is currently evaluating the potential to add additional intercollegiate sports as the institution transitions to a four-year university beginning in the fall of 2003.

The college sponsored a combined men's and women's cross country program from 1981-1992, developed under the guidance of coach Wil Langdon, a professor of finance in the School of Management. However, participation in the program waned and the sport was discontinued in 1992.

Interim Director of Athletics Kevin Grimmer has announced that Shawn Lincoln, the current women's basketball coach and sports information director, will serve as the new head coach for women's cross country. Lincoln, who spent last fall at the helm of the Lady Wildcat's soccer program, is a native of Marlborough, NH and a graduate of the University of New Hampshire and East Stroudsburg University (PA). "I am extremely excited to have the opportunity to revive and revitalize cross country on our campus," said Lincoln. "We already have a tremendous asset in place, our campus, which possesses numerous cross country trails and training facilities. Last year we hosted several high school cross country events, including the New York Public High School state championships, and the success of those events clearly demonstrate the viability of cross country at the Institute of Technology."
